Mr. Lamb gave his statement at the post-

The Donham letter carriers went on a strike this afternoon. They had come to the conclusion that they were no nearer to

They could get little or no satisfaction from Donham, who told them it might be very creditable displays. The map work from several of these places is admirable. A number of counties make special displays. A feature of these is a series of photographs showing the log schoolhouses of forty years ago in contrast with the present commodious structures. The Marion county schools make an excellent exhibit and receive much praise from Professor Hailman. The work of one school in par-ticular, that of Miss Della Brown, he considers one of the most remarkable for orignality and merit in the entire State colection. Altegether, the Indiana educational display is highly creditable to the State and to all engaged in preparing it.

MINING AND AGRICULTURE. So much cannot be said in praise either of the exhibit of mines and mining or of the agricultural display. The Indiana mines and mining pavilion has an excellent position in the center aisle of the building, but the display is hardly what Indianians expect to see. Some of the pavilions are very elaborate and costly, as, for instance, that of Ohio, immediately adoining, which is made of Ohio stone and brick and is handsomely decorated. In-diana, however, had little money to spend in this direction, and has erected an inex-pensive wooden booth, which, however, would answer every purpose if the mineral wealth of the State were collected and displayed in it to the best advantage. There are, of course, specimens of coal, stoncommercial clays, soils, petroleum oil and mineral waters, but they do not convey an adequate idea of the State's resources in this line. The block-coal exhibit is Very satisfactory, but the others are poor. The blocks of stone are evidently the same that have been on exhibition at State fairs and in the agricultural rooms at the Statehouse, and the same may be said for the clays, soils, etc., all of which are displayed in glass jars. There is a notable absence of the products of these natural materials, as, for instance, decorative tiling and plate glass. No stranger could guess from seeing this display that the Indiana stone quarries are among the best in the world br that its clays are used for manufacturing the finest posteries. Individual exhibits of manufactorers elsewhere at the fair may supply this defloiency to some careful sight seers, but the general impression of a State's natural products will be gained from the tive State exhibits, it could not have been lack of funds that caused this insufficient display, as in all probability manufacturers would readily have contributed specimens of their products in addition to their private exhibits. The magnificent display from New South Wales, directly across the aisle, emphasizes the poor character of this.

The agricultural display is open to the same objection. With the exception of a pyramid built up of ears of corn and stalks of grasses and grains in a case, everything here is in jars. Next on one side is New York, with a pavilion equally plain, but with a display of corn, grains, seeds, soils, etc., arranged in flat glass boxes in a way much more effective than that of Indiana. "Ours is Yankee corn," said the old man in charge, dryly, "but we can raise one hun-dred bushels shelled to the acre, and we think a good deal of it." New York had a large appropriation, but gave little for this exhibit, its money going into the State building mainly.

Kentucky is on the other side of Indiana, and its exhibit is not yet in order, but it is decorating the booth with tobaccoin braids. ropes, tassels and fringes, in a highly artistic manner. Canada is across the aisle with a large and beautiful exhibit.

The individual exhibits by Indianians are, of course, scattered through the buildings to which they respectively belong, and are only to be found as the visitor wends his way about. The commissioners, however, say that the State is or will be represented in all departments. Although the fair has been open nearly three weeks, all the people connected with it speak of what will be and not what is, so many exhibits being incomplete and so many delays having occurred on account of the weather. The weather having moderated, however, the work of arrangement goes rapidly on, and an expression of increased cheerfulness appears in all faces.

SUNDAY OPENING POSTPONED.

The World's Fair to Be Closed To-Morrow-Thomas Still Musical Director, Special to the Indianapolis Journal,

CHICAGO, May 12.-Sunday opening of the world's fair has been postponed for a week. The local directory held a meeting this afternoon, at which it was decided to close the fair next Sunday in order to give the national commission sufficient time to take action on a Sunday rule which was submitted to that body to-day. While the local directory is anxious to have the sanction of the national commission in opening the exposition on the first day of the week, it was apparent from expressions at this eventag's meeting that unless the pourts interfere the great show will be open Sunday, regardless of any action the national commission may take. The great public which has been clamoring so loudly for Sunday opening is becoming impatient at the delay, and it is not probable that some difficulty will be experienced in keeping the people out of the grounds next made no reply to Director-general Davis's letter requesting his resignation as director of the musical bureau of the world's fair. He has consulted with certain members of the local directory, however, and expresses a willingness, if the directory so desire, to select for future concerts such artists as are willing to use the instruments manufactured by exhibitors, provided he is retained as head of the muscal department. The sentiment seems to be among the directors it favor of not only retaining Mr. Thomas but of leaving him free to arrange programmes as he wishes.

The paid admissions at the world's fair to-day were 27,605. The New York Symphony Orchestra, un-Damrosch, gave a concert in Music Hall, this afternoon, at 4 o'clock. Mr. Adolph B. Bodski, one of the world's greatest violintsts, was the soloist of the occasion.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 19 .- A large crowd was at Purdue University this morning to witness the field sports. Visitors from outside the city wore the college colors of old gold and black, and the students and their girl companions were decorated with the various class colors. The steps of the main building and the lawn fronting it were covered by the largest gathering of people who ever before assembled at the field day trials. The referee and starter was C. O. DuPlessis, of Chicago, Edwin W. Smith, of the Chicago Times, failing to put in an appearance. The judges of the finish were A. M. Amadon, J. W. Noel and P. H. Richardson; field judges, M. J. TURF SCANDAL,

Pierre Lorillard Charges Crooked Work in the Brooklyn Handicap Race. NEW YORK, May 19 .- "I thank God that I got my borse out of that race alive, and when I think of that pack of villains and scoundrels who were in the scheme I feel doubly thankful." These were the words, according to the Herald, that Pierre Lorillard used when asked to express an opinion of the Brooklyn handicap run at Gravesend, last Monday, when his great colt, Lamplighter, was beaten by Diabloin a race that bids fair to become one of the greatest scandals of the turf history. Mr. Lorillard is convinced that his horse was not beaten by fair means, and he wants the race investigated and the guilty parties, if it is shown there was a job, punished. Acting on a telegram which Mr. Huggins, trainer of the Kancoacas stable, sent to his employer on the night of the race. Mr. Lorillard has requested President Forbes, of the New York Jockey Club, to see President Hunter, of the board of control, and urge an investigation of the race. Mr. Lordlard also announced that he would never start a horse in the Brooklyn handicap again. He was particularly severe in his remarks about J. Lambley, the rider of Fidelio, believing from the report that he received that this little jockey did more than any other boy in the race to ruin Lamplighter's chances. He recalled the fact that young Lambley had been guilty of a similar offense last year, and wound up by asking that the race be thoroughly investigated. The Herald is informed that trainer Huggins, in his report to Mr. Loritiard, strongly insinuated, if he did not actually declare, that Sims pulled Lampinghter. This, however, may have been done in the heat of the moment. President Dwyer, of the Brooklyn Jackey Club, says he will pay $5,000 for any evidence of fraud. To-day the following dispatch was received from Pierre Lorillard: "The report published in a New York paper this morning is a wholesale lie. I refused to see the reporter and he interviewed a friend, who merely stated that I was thankful that Lamplighter came out of the race alive. Please show this," Phil Dwyer, president of the jockey club, says he will ask to have the whole matter laid before the board of

A Chance Meeting.

Boston Transcript. At one of the literary lectures in Boston there was present a Western man who asked of his neighbor in the seat some questions about the celebrities of Boston and vicinity. After the lecture he was introduced to Miss Larcom, who sat near him. "What! not Lucy Larcom the veritable, the poet?" "That is my name," she answered, with a smile never to be forgotten after it was once seen, "and I do sometimes write verses," "Oh, won't my wife be pleased when I tell her I have actually seen you and shaken hands with you! Why, she reads everything of yours she can lay hands on and cuts out all your pieces. She has lots of 'em treasured away n a drawer all by themselves. We live in Oregon, Well, well, we never do know what good things there are coming to us do we? I never expected to set eyes on you." "You must give my kindest regards to your wife, and tell her I am glad to hear of her, and to have seen you," and she bade him a cordial good-bye while his face was yet broadened by the delightful surprise of the encounter.

LABOR DIFFICULTY SMOOTHED OUT.

Teamsters and Shovelers Again at Work All Over the City.

There was little in the city yesterday to indicate that there was or had been a strike of any dimensions among the street workers. There has never before been a time when work of this character was so plentiful in Indianapolis, and never a time when so many improvements of a public and private nature were being done. With possibly one or two exceptions, men were at work on all of them yesterday in as large numbers as the contractors could well handle, and all seemed satisfied with the existing state of affairs. One of these exceptions is on the work of laying the extensions of the Shelby-street street can lines, which is being done by contractor McNally for the Citizens' Street-railroad Company.

Yesterday morning only a few mer showed up for work, and they were soon coaxed to leave by strikers who were standing idly around. A large crowd of them assembled at Union Hall about 9 o'clock in the morning, and had a conference with Michael Collins, who was there as the representative of the Team-sters' and Shovelers' Union. They got little encouragement from bir, he saying that the union did not authorize the strike of the street-car men, and that they need not look for assistance from it. The result of the conference was that a large number of the men returned to work at the old scale, and contractor McNally says that he does not anticipate any more trouble in getting all the men he wants at the prices he is willing to pay. About a timilar operation was performed on the Prospect-street extension, the men returning to work later in the day.

The city and the men who have been at work on its street repairs, sewer and bridge gangs came to an agreement yesterday, and all of the men have returned to work Street Commissioner Burns said yesterday that the city had agreed to pay $1.60 per day to shovelers and $3.75 a day to teams. These men only work eight hours, the city always having observed the State law making a day's labor that length. Mr. Burns was asked why it was that the city was paying even more than the men demanded and more than union prices. He said that it had always been the custom of the city to pay a little more than anyone else, and that that was the only reason he knew of. He said further that all the men had returned to work, and were very glad to do 80.

TRIED TO END HER LIFE.

Young Wife, Weary of Wedded Woes, Swallows Ten Morphine Pills.

Suffering from marital woes, and discouraged with the outlook which life seemed to hold for her, Melly Querry, a seventeen-year-old wife, attempted to rid herself of earth's burdens, yesterday, by swallowing a heavy dose of morphine. She was married two months ago to a young man who she found was not her ideal, and she left him to live with her father, at No. 147 West Merrill street. Yesterday afternoon she was in conversation with one of her girl acquaintances, and remarked that the troubles she was having were too heavy for her to bear.

Soon afterwards she went to a drug store. purchased twelve morphine pills, and took ten of them. Her act was discovered before the drug had taken fatal effect, and Dr. Tuttle, of the City Dispensary, was summoned. After prompt and hard work the physician succeeded in resuscitating Mrs. Querry, and states that she will recover. This attempt to die by her own hand was very similar to the effort made by Mrs. Mollie Phillips, of No. 36 Eddy street, to kill herself on Wednesday. Both were young wives, unable to live happily with their husbands, and both were saved by the dispensary physicians.

Building Associations Must Report Auditor of State Henderson yesterday called attention to the fact that very few of the building and loan associations of the State had filed reports with the Secretary of State, as was provided in the Gifford bill, enacted by the last Legislature. The law was faulty in that it provided that the law should go into effect April 1, whereas the Constitution defines only two ways in which acts can be made of effect, by declaration of emergency and upon the proclamation of the Governor. With this knowledge, most of the companies have paid no attention to the provision requiring a report. But the law is now in force by proclamation, and it is the purpose to enforce it to the letter. Reports, the Auditor says, must be made at once. A BOND HILLS, of Cincinnati.

Brown was growing pretty sleepy to take a nap on the front piazza of the house. The proprietor of the premises found his unweicome guest fast asleep upon the porch, but he was nuable to remove the lodger, and telephoned police headquarters for assistance. Officers Simpson and Klinger relieved the locality of the intruder.

Big Four Talking of New Rules. Vice President Murray, of the Big Four, General Superintendent Van Winkle, and Superintendent of Motive Power William Garstang have been holding a conference with a committee of trainmen relative to an adjustment of a scale of wages and of the rules of the company. It has been two years since the road adopted the rules now in force for overtime pay and established the present scale of wages. Some dissatisfaction existed on both sides, it is claimed. and the conference has in view the adjustment of these differences. Father Bessonies Knocked Down,
